the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (1990-1999) (Department of Health, 2000).

There is a growing emphasis on the importance of the public sector in the provision of health care services. The public sector is seen as a key provider of health care services, and its role is expected to expand in the future. This is reflected in the fact that the public sector is the largest employer in the health care sector, and its share of total health care expenditure is increasing.

The public sector is also seen as a key provider of health care services, and its role is expected to expand in the future. This is reflected in the fact that the public sector is the largest employer in the health care sector, and its share of total health care expenditure is increasing.
